Foreword

Departmental Performance Reports are part of the Estimates family of documents. Estimates documents support appropriation acts, which specify the amounts and broad purposes for which funds can be spent by the government. The Estimates document family has three parts.

Part I (Government Expenditure Plan) provides an overview of federal spending.

Part II (Main Estimates) lists the financial resources required by individual departments, agencies and Crown corporations for the upcoming fiscal year.

Part III (Departmental Expenditure Plans) consists of two documents. Reports on Plans and Priorities (RPPs) are expenditure plans for each appropriated department and agency (excluding Crown corporations). They describe departmental priorities, strategic outcomes, programs, expected results and associated resource requirements, covering a three-year period beginning with the year indicated in the title of the report. Departmental Performance Reports (DPRs) are individual department and agency accounts of actual performance, for the most recently completed fiscal year, against the plans, priorities and expected results set out in their respective RPPs. DPRs inform parliamentarians and Canadians of the results achieved by government organizations for Canadians.

Additionally, Supplementary Estimates documents present information on spending requirements that were either not sufficiently developed in time for inclusion in the Main Estimates or were subsequently refined to account for developments in particular programs and services.

The financial information in DPRs is drawn directly from authorities presented in the Main Estimates and the planned spending information in RPPs. The financial information in DPRs is also consistent with information in the Public Accounts of Canada. The Public Accounts of Canada include the Government of Canada Consolidated Statement of Financial Position, the Consolidated Statement of Operations and Accumulated Deficit, the Consolidated Statement of Change in Net Debt, and the Consolidated Statement of Cash Flow, as well as details of financial operations segregated by ministerial portfolio for a given fiscal year. For the DPR, two types of financial information are drawn from the Public Accounts of Canada: authorities available for use by an appropriated organization for the fiscal year, and authorities used for that same fiscal year. The latter corresponds to actual spending as presented in the DPR.

The Treasury Board Policy on Management, Resources and Results Structures further strengthens the alignment of the performance information presented in DPRs, other Estimates documents and the Public Accounts of Canada. The policy establishes the Program Alignment

Architecture of appropriated organizations as the structure against which financial and non-financial performance information is provided for Estimates and parliamentary reporting. The same reporting structure applies irrespective of whether the organization is reporting in the Main Estimates, the RPP, the DPR or the Public Accounts of Canada.

A number of changes have been made to DPRs for 2013–14 to better support decisions on appropriations. Where applicable, DPRs now provide financial, human resources and performance information in Section II at the lowest level of the organization's Program Alignment Architecture.

In addition, the DPR's format and terminology have been revised to provide greater clarity, consistency and a strengthened emphasis on Estimates and Public Accounts information. As well, departmental reporting on the Federal Sustainable Development Strategy has been consolidated into a new supplementary information table posted on departmental websites. This new table brings together all of the components of the Departmental Sustainable Development Strategy formerly presented in DPRs and on departmental websites, including reporting on the Greening of Government Operations and Strategic Environmental Assessments. Section III of the report provides a link to the new table on the organization's website. Finally, definitions of terminology are now provided in an appendix.

Correctional Investigator's Message

The Office of the Correctional Investigator was established in 1973 to function as an ombudsman for federally sentenced offenders. From the beginning, our independent and external oversight of the correctional system has enhanced accountability and transparency for parliamentarians and Canadians. Moreover, we have played an important role in ensuring that Canada's correctional system is managed fairly and consistent with the expectations and values of Canadians.

Oversight of corrections encompasses more than the investigation of complaints and the filing of reports. Our effectiveness centres on the ability to be responsive and accessible by maintaining a regular schedule of institutional visits. We believe our recommendations to the Correctional Service of Canada make a difference in the lives of Canadians and contribute to the protection of human rights and the maintenance of a just, peaceful and safe society.

During the reporting period, the Office's team of investigators cumulatively spent 423 days in federal institutions and interviewed 1,886 offenders. We received over 5,400 complaints from federal offenders, 18,867 contacts were made via our toll-free number and over 7 million visitor hits were recorded on our website. In addition, the Office's Use of Force team conducted 1,740 file reviews. We also reviewed 185 cases stemming from the Corrections and Conditional Release Act section 19 involving serious bodily injury and deaths in custody. These are significant achievements for an agency with 36 full-time equivalents.

In addition, my Office completed several in-depth systemic investigations:

- An Investigation of the Correctional Service's Mortality Review Process;
- Risky Business: An Investigation of the Treatment and Management of Chronic Self-Injury Among Federally Sentenced Women;
- Follow-up to Unauthorized Force: An Investigation into the Dangerous Use of Firearms at Kent Institution between January 8 and January 18, 2010; and
- A Case Study of Diversity in Corrections – The Black Inmate Experience in Federal Penitentiaries.

As with all public service organizations, my Office participated in the Clerk of the Privy Council's BluePrint 2020 initiative and launched several projects that will enhance our operations and meet Canadians' expectations of quality ombudsman services. My Office also implemented the Common Human Resources Business Process and project charter which will guide the management and evaluation of these activities.

Looking ahead, I remain confident in my staff's dedication to achieving excellence vis-à-vis our strategic outcome and to report on performance in concise and understandable ways to parliamentarians and Canadians. We are guided in all we do by a clear Code of Conduct which respects and reinforces Public Service values and principles. My Office will continue to demonstrate discipline and prudence in all fiscal matters, by engaging in sound risk management, rigorous stewardship, clear accountabilities and responsible spending.

It is with great pride that I submit this Departmental Performance Report which provides information on how my Office has fulfilled its important mandate with professionalism and excellence in fiscal year 2013-14.

Organizational Context

Raison d’être

As the ombudsman for federally sentenced offenders, the Office of the Correctional Investigator (OCI) serves Canadians and contributes to safe, lawful and humane corrections through independent oversight of the Correctional Service of Canada by providing accessible, impartial and timely investigations of individual and systemic concerns. While an independent organization, the Office of the Correctional Investigator is part of the Public Safety and Emergency Preparedness Portfolio.

Responsibilities

The mandate of the OCI, as defined by the Corrections and Conditional Release Act (CCRA), is to function as an Ombudsman for federal offenders. The organization is independent of the Correctional Service of Canada (CSC) and may initiate an investigation on receipt of a complaint by or on behalf of an offender, at the request of the Minister or on its own initiative. As provided for in the CCRA, the Correctional Investigator reports annually through the Minister of Public Safety and Emergency Preparedness to both Houses of Parliament.

Strategic Outcome and Program Alignment Architecture

1. Strategic Outcome: The problems of offenders in the federal correctional system are identified and responded to in a timely fashion.

What progress has been made toward this priority? Section 19 of the CCRA requires that the OCI review all investigations conducted by the CSC following the death or serious bodily injury to an inmate. The Office reviewed 185 cases and met all service targets. Progress in this regard is measured by the number of cases that are not reviewed. In keeping with the recommendations of the Arbour Commission of Inquiry, the review and assessment of 1,740 use of force incidents was completed.

Risk Analysis

Key Risks

Risk	Risk Response Strategy	Program
The resolution of complaints in an environment traditionally closed to public scrutiny requires that the Office not only be, but be seen to be independent of the CSC, Public Safety and Emergency Preparedness and the Minister.	As it relates to the delivery of its mandate, the organization's independence is entrenched in its enabling legislation – the CCRA .	Ombudsman for federal offenders
Given that the authority of the Office rests with its power of persuasion and quality of reporting rather than enforceable recommendations, it is imperative that appropriate administrative and public mechanisms be available to ensure that reasonable, fair and timely action is taken on the findings and recommendations made by the Office.	The administrative and public mechanisms available to Canadians include: the access to information and privacy process; media coverage of correctional issues; public statements by the Correctional Investigator; the OCI's web site; tabling of Special and Annual Reports; and, Systemic Investigation Reports.	Ombudsman for federal offenders
The Office's mandate is national in scope and the sheer number and complexity of issues require flexibility and constant re-evaluation of priorities. The client base and network of stakeholders are dispersed in a large number of often geographically remote locations throughout Canada.	As a small agency, the Office relies on 22 FTEs in the Investigative Stream to ensure that federal offender complaints and correctional systemic issues are addressed in a meaningful and timely manner. To achieve this, a nimble approach to priority management is used and staff flexibility is required in adapting to the changing environment.	Ombudsman for federal offenders

While new and planned cell construction may address long term population pressures, immediate capacity challenges including the closure of three institutions and an estimated 1,000 beds, resulting in medium term increased use of double bunking.	In managing complaints stemming from institutional capacity issues, the organization relied on the approach described above (priority management).	Ombudsman for federal offenders

Maintaining an independent and objective review process within a correctional environment where the Office has no control over the number and complexity of complaints requiring investigations presents a number of unique challenges. Moreover, the Office does not foresee a decline in either the overall demand for services or in the complexity of the issues it is called upon to address. The environment in which it operates will continue to be extremely challenging.

Departmental Spending Trend

The organization's actual and planned spending is consistently under $4.7 million with a minor increase in actual spending in 2011-12. This was the result of changes to conditions of employment and the accumulation of severance benefits under the employee severance pay program that ceased in 2012. Most employees subject to these changes were paid out the full value of benefits earned and accumulated to date.

Program 1.1: Ombudsman for federal offenders

Description

Through this program, the Office of the Correctional Investigator conducts investigations of individual offender complaints regarding acts, omissions, decisions and recommendations of the CSC. It also has a responsibility to review and make recommendations on CSC's policies and procedures associated with the areas of individual complaints, to ensure that systemic areas of complaint are identified and appropriately addressed, and to review all s.19 investigations performed by CSC following the death of, or serious injury to, an inmate.

The OCI reviewed 185 cases stemming from the CCRA section 19 involving serious bodily injury and deaths in custody within the prescribed standard. Performance Analysis and Lessons Learned

A complement of four Intake Officers responded to 18,867 contacts; dealt with an average of 25 complaints per day (mostly from offenders) via the organization’s toll-free number; assessed the information provided by the caller; and in many cases, resolved the issue or directed the case appropriately to an investigator with a view to addressing the matter. Moreover, investigative staff carried out professional, timely and responsive analysis of offender complaints and investigations throughout the reporting period – thus ensuring the delivery of the Office’s important mandate.

As is the case every year, the number and frequency of institutional visits and offender interviews across the country ensured an organizational presence with clients. The Office’s presence in the institutions resulted in the ongoing demand for the Office’s services and a greater awareness and understanding of the Office’s role and mandate. The operational challenge in the reporting period centered on the need to strike a workable balance between managing daily offender complaints and involving investigative staff in leading or supporting systemic investigations. To that end, the senior management committee considered a variety of delivery models used in other ombudsman-type organizations in the management of systemic investigations. Exploring best practices and lessons learned will continue and inform future investigative models.

Moreover, the Office completed several systemic investigations:

- Deaths in Custody– An Investigation of the Correctional Service’s Mortality Review Process – Released December 18, 2013;
- Chronic Self-Injury Among Women Offenders – Risky Business: An Investigation of the Treatment and Management of Chronic Self-Injury Among Federally Sentenced Women – Released September 30, 2013;
- Follow-up to Unauthorized Force: An Investigation into the Dangerous Use of Firearms at Kent Institution between January 8 and January 18, 2010; and,
- A Case Study of Diversity in Corrections – The Black Inmate Experience in Federal Penitentiaries.

Performance Analysis and Lessons Learned

The Internal Services program activity was managed to ensure full compliance with relevant Government of Canada policies, guidelines, and legislation as well as OCI-specific policies and directives. This was accomplished through the development of internal control processes and the provision of training in key corporate areas. Corporate staff continued its active involvement in the Shared Case Management System Initiative and completed the Common Human Resources Business Process Project by the prescribed deadline of March 31, 2014. Only a few gaps in the OCI's Human Resources processes were identified in comparison to the standard and subsequently addressed as per the management action plan. Lastly, the Office of the Comptroller General finalized its Horizontal Internal Audit of the Protection of Personal Information in Small Departments. Their final report supports the OCI's practices in this area.
